Rebit Signs D&H Distributing as Authorized National Distributor

Leading Technology Distributor Expands Rebit Channel Accessibility

LONGMONT, Colorado and HARRISBURG, Pennsylvania

April 8, 2009

Rebit™ Inc., the company dedicated to relieving the burden of backup for PC users, today announced that D&H Distributing has been named a Rebit Authorized National Distributor. D&H Distributing, a major North American computer products and consumer electronics distributor, now offers the entire line of Rebit appliance and software CD products to its extensive channel network in the United States and Canada.

“D&H Distributing is an award-winning supplier with broad cross-channel expertise that fits perfectly with Rebit’s target market,” said Charlene Murphy, executive vice president of sales and marketing, Rebit Inc. “D&H’s outstanding reputation and distinguished history has earned the loyalty of its significant channel base, and we are confident that Rebit’s backup and recovery products will provide a compelling and successful addition to the D&H product portfolio.”

“Our channel partners will find that Rebit products are ideal for their small business customers who need complete, fully-automated backup and recovery that is incredibly easy-to-use,” commented Jeff Davis, senior vice president of sales, D&H Distributing. “Protecting a company’s data is more crucial than ever in the current environment. We are pleased to offer Rebit’s original, exciting products to our channel network, to help them differentiate themselves in this market.”

Rebit provides complete and continuous backup of Windows-based computers. Unlike competing products that only copy data, Rebit also protects applications, individual settings, and the entire operating system. It even maintains multiple versions of files as they change. In the event of a complete hard drive failure, a virus, or just the accidental deletion of a file, Rebit provides painless recovery using the familiar “drag and drop” feature of Windows Explorer. Rebit is a self-contained backup appliance. Just plug the Rebit backup drive into the PC’s USB port, and it quickly and silently goes to work. There’s no software to install, no confusing configuration settings, and no complicated schedules to setup. Rebit is the backup solution that’s so simple, it actually gets used. Rebit recently introduced a CD-version that allows the user to convert any USB drive to a Rebit appliance, and a multi-PC version that protects up to six computers with a single appliance. Rebit
